Course Code	INGL-3102
Contact Hours	Three credits + one hour listening/speaking practice in the language laboratory (no credits)
Requisites	English 3101 or its equivalent (Students enrolled in this course must also be enrolled in the English lab/ INGL-3114 in order to pass the course.)

Course Description

This is the second half of a two-part course, which aims to reinforce the basic skills and structures of the English language. The grammatical content is reinforced through reading and writing activities. *This section of the course is offered in the form of a Learning Community (LC). A LC is an educational strategy that offers students an integral educational experience when taking their classes in college. It consists of linking two courses of different subjects and approaches. The same group of students takes both courses together. These courses will intersect at several points throughout the semester to discuss content and to perform tasks and projects that integrate the contents of both classes.

Learning Objectives

At the end of the course the students will:

1. Enrich their vocabulary through the class discussion of readings of essays, poetry and drama that are mostly written by Puerto Rican diaspora authors.
2. Use the newly acquired vocabulary to participate in the class discussion of the topics presented in the reading selections.
3. Use vocabulary in context clues to develop better reading comprehension
4. Identify the main idea and supporting details of the reading selections.
5. Apply critical thinking skills to make inferences, draw logical conclusions, engage in problem solving and decision making.
6. Identify the different types of paragraphs in reading selections of argumentative essays by applying the writing
7. Apply the writing process approach to compose an argumentative essay with the introductory, body, counterargument, refutation, and concluding paragraphs.
8. Apply the writing process approach to write and recite Cinquain and Haiku poems.
9. Apply the writing process approach to write and perform a skit.
10. Compare, contrast, and demonstrate respect for differences of opinion and points of view of their classmates, society in general, and the university academia.

11. Create an electronic portfolio and/or blog that will include their argumentative essay, Cinquain and Haiku poems, and a video recording of their dramatized skit, among other other projects.
12. Use technology to develop research skills using on-line resources at the library and other data bases to acquire knowledge.
13. Take pride in the literary contributions, find common ground, and demonstrate respect for the different points of view presented by Puerto Rican diaspora writers.
14. Develop a clear awareness of the many advantages learning to listen, speak, read and write in English provides so that the necessary intrinsic motivation that will drive them to practice English on a daily basis throughout their lifetime will evolve and make them self-taught successful language learners.

Together we will assess and develop elements of interdisciplinary understanding between INGL-3102 and ESPA-3102. The activities will be planned according to the development of the learning community, students' feedback and interests, and evolving themes of both classes throughout the semester. The grades of these assignments will have the same weight in both courses, and will be included in the final grade in accordance with the evaluation criteria set by the instructors.

Reasonable Accommodation

Students who are sheltered under Law 51 or receive vocational rehabilitation services that require reasonable accommodations must inform the professor at the beginning of the semester by bringing an official letter that is sent from the office that deals with the matters of persons with impediments at the university in order to offer the necessary accommodations in accordance to the specifications that are delineated in said document.

Academic Integrity

The University of Puerto Rico promotes the highest standards of academic and scientific integrity. Article 6.2 of the UPR Students General Bylaws (Board of Trustees Certification 12-2009-2010) states that academic dishonesty includes, but is not limited to: fraudulent actions; obtaining grades or academic degrees by false or fraudulent simulations; copying the whole or part of the academic work of another person; plagiarizing totally or partially the work of another person; copying all or part of another person's answers to the questions of an oral or written exam by taking or getting someone else to take the exam on his/her behalf; as well as enabling and facilitating another person to perform the aforementioned behavior. Any of these behaviors will be subject to disciplinary action in accordance with the disciplinary procedure laid down in the UPR Students General Bylaws.
